Sofa & Easy Chair

PRODUCT INFORMATION

The sofa Ghost is designed by Claesson Koivisto Rune and is an easily applied piece of furniture thanks to the cubist outer line. Rooms are in general squares and therefore a sofa, which is in fact a rather big object, most often looks the best if it also has a cubist expression. Ghost combines a modern faceted inner form with a classic exterior, which makes it easily applied in the most varied environments. Ghost is designed to function both in a home and in the public room.

"I am both interested and amused by the Stealth esthetics, the form which is generated when planes are placed together and when a computer transforms the curves to facets. I wanted to see what result I could create by combining a cubist volume with a more faceted inside. A sofa partly designed with the computer generated technique", says Eero Koivisto.

"Stealth is often the name given to the military design which aims at avoiding discovery by radar. It is distinguished by a consistent usage of facets in the form. A technique that makes objects invisible. Like a Ghost", continues Eero Koivisto, Claesson Koivisto Rune.
