- BE = beige (whiteboard), NCS S 1005 Y20R
- G = green (chalkboard), NCS S 7010 G10Y
- GG = graphite grey (chalkboard), NCS S 7500 N
- B = blue (chalkboard), NCS S 5040 R80B
- GR = light grey (whiteboard) NCS S 2000N
- S = black (chalkboard), NCS S 8500 N

For matte or semi-matte surface, please add one of the following prefixes to the article number:

Right, so it's too big a question. Goddamn flippin' it around. Places aren't asking anything of me. I feel like bookstores that aren't asking anything and what they're about. Therefore they're suggesting you want in a manner conducive to their planned surrounding.

Which is easy to do. They're places designed for a specific experience, so I think it's the non-places that are asking the most of you. They only tell you little things. A specific planned experience leaves no room?

I wouldn't go that extra step. I would hold back at the unknown. It's like meeting someone who doesn't just want to talk at you. You look at them and they look at you and you don't get anything concrete. They're inviting you to begin, but you can't do anything wrong. You're just going to make it up as you go. That's a truly exciting feeling. Wandering is letting go of presumptions. It is a search for the beginner's mind. A love affair with the world unstated. I think that's why, in lieu of the swamp, you go to the forgotten urban places. They've become open again, or something.

TALKING WITH JUSTIN APPERLEY

Do you remember the first time you were conscious of the fact that you were traveling, not for the purpose of reaching a destination, but for the sake of MOVING?

I totally do! It was after I finished my degree and left the Yukon. I travelled with a buddy from Western Canada all the way to St. John's, Newfoundland. ARRIVED at my destination, and freaked out that I completed my goal. I decided to keep moving and hitch hike back out west to Tofino, British Columbia. It keeps on getting worse and worse every time I stop after a long time of moving everywhere.

Meaning you just wanna get back on the road again?

Totally. I'm pretty sure at this point in my life hitting the road is more of a stable lifestyle for me than trying to figure out my shit in one
